PART II.

VALIDITY OF ELECTRONIC RECORDS AND DIGITAL SIGNATURES.

§13.3. General rule of validity – records in writing.

1. Electronic record satisfies requirement for writing. If a rule of law:
 - (a) Requires information to be or to be given in writing; or
 - (b) Provides for certain consequences if it is not, an electronic record satisfies the requirement if the information contained in the electronic record is accessible so as to be usable for subsequent reference.

2. Electronic record sufficient where writing permitted. If a rule of law permits information to be or given in writing, an electronic record satisfies the requirement if the information contained in the electronic record is accessible so as to be usable for subsequent reference.

§13.4. General rule of validity – signatures.

1. Digital signature satisfies requirement for signature. If a rule of law requires the signature of a person or provides for certain consequences if a document is not signed by a person, a digital signature of the person satisfies the requirement but only if the digital signature is supported by a recognized certificate and is generated within the validity of that certificate.

2. Interpretation. In sub-section 1, “within the validity of that certificate” means that at the time the digital signature is generated:

- (a) The recognition of the recognized certificate is not revoked or suspended;
- (b) If the Recognition Authority has specified a period of validity for the recognition of the recognized certificate, the certificate is within that period; and
- (c) If the recognized certification authority has specified a period of validity for the recognized certificate, the certificate is within that period.

§13.5. Transaction in or affecting domestic or foreign commerce.

1. Effect on enforceability – electronic record. Notwithstanding any rule of law (other than this Law), with respect to any transaction in or affecting domestic or foreign commerce:

- (a) A contract, or other record relating to such transaction may not be denied legal effect, validity, or enforceability solely because it is in electronic form; and
- (b) A contract, relating to such transaction may not be denied legal effect, validity, or enforceability solely because an electronic record was used in its formation.

2. Effect on enforceability – electronic signature. Notwithstanding any rule of law (other than this Law), with respect to any transaction in or affecting domestic or foreign commerce:

- (a) A signature relating to such transaction may not be denied legal effect, validity, or enforceability solely because it is in electronic form; and
- (b) A contract relating to such transaction may not be denied legal effect, validity, or enforceability solely because an electronic signature was used in its formation.

3. Communication of offer and acceptance. For the avoidance of doubt, it is declared that in the context of the formation of contracts, unless otherwise agreed by the parties, an offer and the acceptance of an offer may be in whole or in part expressed by means of electronic records.

§13.6. Preservation of rights and obligations.

This Law does not:

- (a) Limit, alter, or otherwise affect any requirement imposed by a rule of law relating to the rights and obligations of persons under such rule of law other than a requirement that contracts or other records be written or in non-electronic form; or

- (b) Require any person to agree to use or accept electronic records or electronic signatures with respect to a record other than a contract to which it is a party.

§13.7. Oral communications.

An oral communication or a recording of an oral communication shall not qualify as an electronic record for the purposes of this Law.

PART III.

PRESENTATION AND RETENTION OF ELECTRONIC RECORDS AND DIGITAL SIGNATURES.

§13.8. Presentation or retention of information in its original form.

1. Requirement to retain satisfied by electronic record. Where a rule of law requires that certain information be presented or retained in its original form, the requirement is satisfied by presenting or retaining the information in the form of electronic records if:

- (a) The electronic records accurately reflect the information set forth in the original form;
- (b) The electronic records remain accessible to all persons who are entitled to access by rule of law, for the period required by such rule of law, in a form that is capable of being accurately reproduced for later reference, whether by transmission, printing, or otherwise; and
- (c) There exists a reliable assurance as to the integrity of the information from the time when it was first generated in its final form.

2. Interpretation. For the purposes of sub-section 1(c):

- (a) The criterion for assessing the integrity of the information is whether the information has remained complete and unaltered, apart from the addition of any endorsement or any change which arises in the normal course of communication, storage or display; and
- (b) The standard for reliability of the assurance is to be assessed having regard to the purpose for which the information was generated and all the other relevant circumstances.

3. Application. This section applies whether the requirement in sub-section 1 is in the form of an obligation or whether the rule of law merely provides consequences for the information not being presented or retained in its original form.

4. Retention of contracts and records – checks. If a rule of law requires the retention of a check, that requirement is satisfied by retention of an electronic record of the information on the front and back of the check in accordance with this section.

5. Retention of contracts and records – exception. A requirement to retain a contract or other record in accordance with this section does not apply to any information whose sole purpose is to enable the record to be sent, communicated, or received.

§13.9. Retention of information in electronic records.

1. Retention in electronic form. Where a rule of law requires certain information to be retained, whether in writing or otherwise, the requirement is satisfied by retaining electronic records, if:

- (a) The information contained in the electronic record remains accessible so as to be usable for subsequent reference;
- (b) The relevant electronic record is retained in the format in which it was originally generated, sent or received, or in a format which can be demonstrated to represent accurately the information originally generated, sent or received; and
- (c) The information which enables the identification of the origin and destination of the electronic record and the date and time when it was sent or received, is retained.

2. Application. This section applies whether the requirement in sub-section 1 is in the form of an obligation or whether the rule of law merely provides consequences for the information not being retained.

3. Accuracy and ability to retain contracts and other records. Notwithstanding sub-section 1, if a rule of law requires that a record relating to a transaction or other matter be in writing, the legal effect, validity, or enforceability of an electronic record of such record may be denied if such electronic record is not in a form that is capable of being retained and accurately reproduced for later reference by all parties or persons who are entitled to retain the record.

§13.10. Proximity.

Nothing in this Law affects the proximity required by a rule of law with respect to any warning, notice, disclosure, or other record required to be posted, displayed, or publicly affixed.

§13.11. Notarization and acknowledgment.

If a rule of law requires a signature or record relating to a transaction or any other matter to be notarized, acknowledged, verified, or made under oath, that requirement is satisfied if the electronic signature of the person authorized to perform those acts, together with all other information required to be included by other applicable rule of law, is attached to or logically associated with the signature or record.

§13.12. Electronic agents.

A contract or other record relating to a transaction or other matter may not be denied legal effect, validity or enforceability solely because its formation, creation, or delivery involved the action of one or more electronic agents so long as the action of any such electronic agent is legally attributable to the person to be bound.

§13.13. Admissibility of electronic records.

Without prejudice to any rules of evidence, an electronic record shall not be denied admissibility in evidence in any legal proceeding on the sole ground that it is an electronic record.

§13.14. Exception in respect of court proceedings.

1. General rule. The provisions of Part II and this Part do not apply to court orders or notices, or official court documents (including briefs, pleadings, and other writings) required to be executed in connection with court proceedings unless any rule of law relating to those proceedings provides for application of those provisions.

2. Effect on other provisions. Sub-section 1 is not to be construed as affecting any provision in a rule of law referred to in that sub-section, requiring or permitting, otherwise than by reference to this Law, the use of electronic records or electronic signatures for the purposes of the proceedings to which the rule of law relates.

3. Power to make rules. Any authority given by a rule of law to make rules (however described) for the purpose of any proceedings is to be construed as including a power to provide for:

- (a) The application of Part II and this Part;
- (b) Specification of:
 - (i) The manner and format in which information in the form of an electronic record is to be given, presented or retained for the purposes of those proceedings; and
 - (ii) The procedure and criteria for verification of the receipt of that information and for ensuring the integrity and confidentiality of the information, and the rules may specify different applications and different requirements under paragraph (a) or (b) in relation to different classes or descriptions of proceedings and different documents in proceedings.

4. Interpretation. In this section, “manner and format” includes requirements as to software, communication, data storage, how the electronic record is to be generated, sent, stored or received and where a signature is required, the type of signature and how the signature is to be affixed to the electronic record.

§13.15. Minister of Foreign Affairs may exclude application of Part II and this Part.

1. Exclusion of application. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may, by regulation made in accordance with section 10.5.1 of Chapter 10 of Part II of Title 12 (New Executive Law), exclude any rule of law, or a particular requirement or permission in any rule of law or a class or description of requirements or permissions in any rule of law, to which this Law would otherwise apply from the application of Part II and this Part.

2. Specification of manner, format, etc.. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may, in relation to any rule of law to which this Law applies, specify by regulation:

- (a) The manner and format in which information in the form of an electronic record is to be given, presented or retained for the purposes of that rule of law or a particular requirement or permission in that rule or a class or description of requirements or permissions in that rule;
- (b) The procedure and criteria for verification of the receipt of that information and for ensuring the integrity and confidentiality of the information, and the Minister may specify different requirements under paragraph (a) or (b) in relation to persons or cases of different classes or descriptions.

3. Interpretation. In this section, “manner and format” includes requirements as to software, communication, data storage, how the electronic record is to be generated, sent, stored or received and where a signature is required, the type of signature and how the signature is to be affixed to the electronic record.

4. Application. If the Minister has specified any requirement under sub-section 2(a) in relation to any rule of law, the information given, presented or retained or the signature made, as the case may require, for the purpose of that rule of law does not satisfy that rule unless it complies with the specified requirements.

§13.16. No effect on specific provisions as to electronic records in other statutes.

If a statute requires or permits giving, presenting or retaining information in the form of an electronic record or the authentication of information by an electronic signature for the purposes of that statute, but contains an express provision which:

- (a) Specifies requirements, procedures or other specifications for that purpose;
- (b) Requires the use of a specified service; or
- (c) Confers a discretion on a person whether or when to accept electronic records or electronic signatures for that purpose, the provisions of Part II and this Part are not to be construed as affecting that express provision.

§13.17. Part II and this Part not to have effect if their operation affects other statutory requirements.

1. Application of provisions in respect of “in writing” where other requirement cannot be complied with. If the provisions of Part II and this Part on a requirement or permission in a rule of law for information to be or given in writing (“requirement for writing”) is such that any other requirement in that rule or a related rule (that is, a requirement other than the requirement for writing) cannot be complied with due to the operation of those provisions, those provisions shall not apply to the requirement for writing.

2. Application of provisions in respect of signature where other requirement cannot be complied with. If the effect the provisions of Part II and this Part in respect of an electronic signature on a requirement in a rule of law for the signature of a person is such that any other requirement in that rule or a related rule (that is, a requirement other than the requirement for the signature of a person) cannot be complied with due to the operation of those provisions, those provisions shall not apply to the requirement for the signature of a person.

3. Application of provisions in respect of original form where other requirement cannot be complied with. If the effect of the provisions of this Part in respect of records in original form on a requirement in a rule of law for information to be presented or retained in its original form (“requirement for original form”) is such that any other requirement in that rule or a related rule (that is, a requirement other than the requirement for original form) cannot be complied with due to the operation of those provisions, those provisions shall not apply to the requirement for original form.

4. Application of provisions in respect of retention of records where other requirement cannot be complied with. If the effect of the provisions of this Part in respect of retention of records on a requirement in a rule of law for information to be retained (“requirement for retention”) is such that any other requirement in that rule or a related rule (that is, a requirement other than the requirement for retention) cannot be complied with due to the operation of those provisions, those provisions shall not apply to the requirement for retention.

PART IV.

ATTRIBUTION OF SENDING AND RECEIVING ELECTRONIC RECORDS.

§13.18. Attribution of electronic records.

Unless otherwise agreed between the originator and the addressee of an electronic record, an electronic record is that of the originator if it was sent:

- (a) By the originator;

- (b) With the authority of the originator; or
- (c) By an information system programmed by or on behalf of the originator to operate and to send the electronic record automatically:

Provided that nothing in this section is to affect the law of agent or the law on the formation of contracts.

§13.19. Sending and receiving electronic records.

1. Time at which communication sent. Unless otherwise agreed between the originator and the addressee of an electronic record, an electronic record is sent when it is accepted by an information system outside the control of the originator or of the person who sent the electronic record on behalf of the originator.

2. Time at which communication received. Unless otherwise agreed between the originator and the addressee of an electronic record, the time of receipt of an electronic record is determined as follows:

- (a) If the addressee has designated an information system for the purpose of receiving electronic records, receipt occurs:
 - (i) At the time when the electronic record is accepted by the designated information system; or
 - (ii) If the electronic record is sent to an information system of the addressee that is not the designated information system, at the time when the electronic record comes to the knowledge of the addressee;
- (b) If the addressee has not designated an information system, receipt occurs when the electronic record comes to the knowledge of the addressee.

3. Location of information system. Sub-sections 1 and 2 apply notwithstanding that the place where the information system is located is different from the place where the electronic record is taken to have been sent or received under sub-section 4.

4. Location at which communication sent and received. Unless otherwise agreed between the originator and the addressee, an electronic record is taken to have been:

- (a) Sent at the place of business of the originator; and
- (b) Received at the place of business of the addressee.

5. Interpretation of place of business. For the purposes of sub-section 4 if the originator or the addressee:

- (a) Has more than one place of business, the place of business is that which has the closest relationship to the underlying transaction, or where there is no underlying transaction, the principal place of business of the originator or the addressee, as the case may be;

- (b) Does not have a place of business, the place of business is the place where the originator or the addressee ordinarily resides.

6. Different time zones. Where the originator and the addressee are in different time zones, time refers to Greenwich Mean Time.

PART V.

TRANSACTION WHERE NO PARTY IS GOVERNMENT MINISTRY, ENTITY OR AGENT.

§13.20. Transactions between persons who are not Government Ministries, Entities or Agents.

1. Consent of recipient to electronic form when writing required or permitted. If a rule of law requires or permits information to be given by a person to another and neither person is or is acting on behalf of a Government Ministry, entity or agent, Parts II and III apply only if the person to whom the information is to be given consents to it being given in the form of an electronic record.

2. Consent of recipient to electronic signature. If a rule of law requires the signature of a person (“the signer”) and neither the signer nor the person to whom the signature is to be given (“the second mentioned person”) is or is acting on behalf of a Government Ministry, entity or agent, Parts II and III apply only if the second mentioned person consents to the signer’s digital signature being given.

3. Consent of recipient to original documents in electronic form. If a rule of law requires information to be presented in its original form and neither the person presenting it nor the person to whom it is to be presented (“the second mentioned person”) is or is acting on behalf of a Government Ministry, entity or agent, Parts II and III apply only if the second mentioned person consents to it being presented in the form of an electronic record.

4. Effect on common law rule. For the avoidance of doubt, it is stated that this section does not affect any rule of common law to the effect that the offeror may prescribe the method of communicating acceptance.

5. Interpretation. In this section “consent” includes consent that can be reasonably inferred from the conduct of the person concerned.

§13.21. Consumer disclosures.

1. Consent to electronic records. Notwithstanding the provisions of Parts II and III, if a rule of law requires that information relating to a transaction or transactions in or affecting domestic or foreign commerce be provided or made available to a consumer in writing, the use of an electronic record to provide or make available (whichever is required) such information satisfies the requirement that such information be in writing if:

- (a) The consumer has affirmatively consented to such use and has not withdrawn such consent;
- (b) The consumer, prior to consenting, is provided with a clear and conspicuous statement:
 - (i) Informing the consumer of:

2. Preservation of consumer protections. Nothing in this Law affects the content or timing of any disclosure or other record required to be provided or made available to any consumer under any statute, regulation, or other rule of law.

3. Effect of failure to obtain electronic consent or confirmation of consent. The legal effectiveness, validity, or enforceability of any contract executed by a consumer shall not be denied solely because of the failure to obtain electronic consent or confirmation of consent by that consumer in accordance with sub-section 1(c)(ii).

4. Prospective effect. Withdrawal of consent by a consumer shall not affect the legal effectiveness, validity, or enforceability of electronic records provided or made available to that consumer in accordance with Part III prior to implementation of the consumer's withdrawal of consent. A consumer's withdrawal of consent shall be effective within a reasonable period of time after receipt of the withdrawal by the provider of the record. Failure to comply with sub-section 1(d) may, at the election of the consumer, be treated as a withdrawal of consent for purposes of this sub-section.

5. Prior consent. Sub-sections 1 to 4 do not apply to any records that are provided or made available to a consumer who has consented prior to the operational date of this Law to receive such records in electronic form as permitted by any rule of law.

§13.22. Specific exceptions.

1. Excepted requirements. The provisions of this Law shall not apply to a contract or other record to the extent it is governed by a rule of law governing:

2. Filing and access requirements. Subject to sub-sections 3 and 4, nothing in this Law limits or supersedes any requirement by a Government Ministry, entity or agent that records be filed with such Ministry, entity or agent in accordance with specified standards or formats.

3. Regulation and rule making powers. Where, by virtue of regulations made under section 13.51 (“the operational regulations”), the provisions of this Law apply to a Government Ministry, entity or agent, the operational regulations shall have due regard to security and shall specify in respect of the Ministry, agent or entity the application of this Law and, without prejudice to the generality thereof, shall provide:

- (a) The manner and format in which the electronic record or signature is to be generated, sent, received and retained;
- (b) The procedure and criteria for verification of the receipt of that information and for ensuring the integrity and confidentiality of the information, and the regulations may specify different requirements under paragraph (a) or (b) in relation to persons or cases of different classes or descriptions.

4. Preservation of existing rulemaking authority - use of authority to interpret. Subject to paragraph (b) and any relevant operational regulations, a Government Ministry, entity or agent that is responsible for rulemaking under any other statute may interpret sections 13.3, 13.4, 13.8 and 13.9 with respect to such statute through:

- (a) The issuance of regulations or rules pursuant to a statute; or
- (b) To the extent such Ministry, entity or agent is authorized by statute to issue orders or guidance, the issuance of orders or guidance of general applicability that are publicly available and published.

5. Limitations on interpretation authority. Notwithstanding sub-section 4, a Government Ministry, entity or agent shall not adopt any regulation, order, or guidance described in sub-section 4 unless:

- (a) Such regulation, order, or guidance is consistent with:
 - (i) If application of this Law has required operational regulations to be issued, those regulations and the application therein of sections 13.3, 13.4, 13.8 and 13.9; or
 - (ii) Sections 13.3, 13.4, 13.8 and 13.9;
- (b) Such regulation, order, or guidance does not add to, in a case to which paragraph (a)(i) applies, the requirements of those regulations in the application of those sections or, in a case to which paragraph (a)(ii) applies, the requirements of those sections; and
- (c) Such Ministry, entity or agent finds, in connection with the issuance of such regulation, order, or guidance, that:
 - (i) There is a substantial justification for the regulation, order, or guidance;

- (ii) The methods selected to carry out that purpose:
 - (aa) Are substantially equivalent to the requirements imposed on records that are not electronic records; and
 - (bb) Will not impose unreasonable costs on the acceptance and use of electronic records; and
- (iii) The methods selected to carry out that purpose do not require, or accord greater legal status or effect to, the implementation or application of a specific technology or technical specification for performing the functions of creating, storing, generating, receiving, communicating, or authenticating electronic records or electronic signatures.

6. Performance standards - accuracy, record integrity, accessibility. Notwithstanding subsection 5(c)(iii), a Government Ministry, entity or agent may interpret the provisions of Part III in respect of accuracy, record integrity and accessibility to specify performance standards to assure accuracy, record integrity, and accessibility of records that are required to be retained. Such performance standards may be specified in a manner that imposes a requirement in violation of paragraph 5(c)(iii) if the requirement:

- (a) Serves an important governmental objective; and
- (b) Is substantially related to the achievement of that objective.

Nothing in this sub-section shall be construed to grant any Government Ministry, entity or agent authority to require use of a particular type of software or hardware in order to comply with the provisions as to accuracy, record integrity and accessibility specified in Part III.

7. Performance standards - paper or printed form. Notwithstanding anything in this Law or relevant operational regulations, a Government Ministry, entity or agent may interpret the provisions as to accuracy, record integrity and accessibility specified in Part III to require retention of a record in a tangible printed or paper form if:

- (a) There is a compelling governmental interest relating to law enforcement or national security for imposing such requirement; and
- (b) Imposing such requirement is essential to attaining such interest.

- (e) Whether or not electronic records must be signed by electronic means.

9. Requirements in relation to any rule of law. If regulations, rules, orders or guidance falling within sub-section 3 or 4 specify any requirement as to manner and form in relation to any rule of law, the information given, presented or retained or the signature made, as the case may require, for the purpose of that rule of law does not satisfy that rule unless it complies with the specified requirements.

10. Application of this section. The provisions of sub-sections 1 and 3 shall not apply to matters falling within Titles 5 and 21 of the Liberian Code of Laws Revised.
